In 2021, prior to the death of teen idol, Bobby Rydell, Tommy Cono recorded two songs with the philadelphia icon. These two recordings include “Sway” with an attached music video and “Wild One”. Both hits from Rydell have been given a new flair to intrigue the younger ears of today. Both songs are available on all streaming platforms Tommy Cono has since been named the spokesperson of The Bobby Rydell Foundation as well as the only official tribute artist of the late singer, backed by the Rydell estate. Cono uses Bobby’s original sheet music in his shows when he pays tribute to his friend and fellow entertainer. Tommy’s favorite tune is “Forget Him” (1963) from Rydell.

One of Tommy’s most recent endeavours was flying out to Los Angeles to record another two songs with Frankie Avalon. Combining Frankie’s smooth crooner sound with Cono’s newer, pop feel gave new life to some old favorites. Again, the songs have music videos currently in the works and will be available soon. It has been 45 years since Frankie Avalon has been in a recording studio. Ironically, his last session involved one of the songs the two sang together. “Beauty School Dropout” & “Beach Blanket Bingo” have a slight change in feeling after this production.

We really looking forward to working with you.
